LOCATION	Spain, Huesca

We are looking for attractive candidates to apply for the upcoming MSCA-IF-2017 call. We are very interested in hosting postdoctoral fellows working in our current research topics. We are currently working in two European projects: a MSCA-ITN European Training Network (greencarbon), and an ERANETMED project.

The research topics we can offer to fellows are the following:

- Optimisation of pyrolysis process conditions in terms of biochar stability and other properties.
- Development of biochar-derived activated carbons for CO₂ capture in both pre- and post-combustion.
- Development of biochar-based metal catalysts for application in reactions involved during the pyrolysis gas upgrading (cracking and WGS).

We also offer the possibility to conduct a secondment in a different University as well as at the premises of an industrial partner.

The postdoctoral fellow will be able to interact with all the actors currently involved in the GreenCarbon ETN, leading to key benefits on both sides.

if you are interested, please, contact Prof. Dr. Joan J. Manyà (joanjoma@unizar.es) as soon as possible.

Dear colleagues,

I would like to invite you and researchers at your institution to a free YouTube Q&A hosted by Vitae on the topic of: Coping with stress and anxiety: health and well-being for researchers, which will take place on the 14 March between 2-3pm (UK Time) or 3-4pm (CET).

This is your opportunity to learn more about looking after your own mental health and well-being and hear from researchers share their experiences of balancing life and research.

Please share widely with researchers at your institutions: <http://bit.ly/2lgGHwv>
